Download music straight from the radio for free only with the Intempo Rebel™

Intempo's reputation for innovative music technology just took one giant leap forward with the launch of Rebel™, a revolutionary music sampling system. Tuned into an FM radio station, Rebel™ records up to 40 of the most played music tracks, automatically cutting out the DJ chat and the ads, then letting you download your favourite songs onto your iPod, MP3 or mobile phone, free of charge. Available from March in seductive red or hi-gloss black, £69.99 from leading online and high-street electrical retailers and www.intempodigital.com.

Tune into your favourite FM radio station then let Rebel™ get to work. It's the first product in the world to use PopCatcher™ technology which automatically records music over a 24hour period*, saving tracks as MP3 files. Where songs are repeated, an optimal version will be saved and it will all be free from DJ chatter, ads and news.

Recording is not restricted to FM radio; there is a line-in jack to hook up to DAB digital or Internet radio. Accessing recorded music is effortless, no need for an internet connection or PC, just download from the USB port directly onto your iPod or via the SD card slot for your mobile phone or MP3 and then chose the tracks you want to keep.

"At Intempo it's all about the music and Rebel™ is all about getting easy access to the music you love," said Katie Richards, Marketing Manager at Intempo

"Rebel™ really is an easy hassle-free way of keeping your music updated all the time, with the added bonus that it's free. You can set Rebel™ to record whilst you are out at work, sleeping or partying. And when it's finished you have new songs to enjoy!" Katie concluded.

Notes to editors

Rebel needs to sample music on a radio station for approx. 12-36 hours in order to record at optimal levels. The longer the sampling is performed, the more songs will be recorded and the more complete the version.*
