

Intempo leads the way on Radio Podcasting

For the first time, 55,000 global podcasts now available free on the Intempo GX internet radio

If one serving of the breakfast show just isn't enough or you want to hear repeats of your favourite comedian or just catch up with the latest sports commentary from the USA, now you can; choose from over 55,000 global podcasts which are available for free, exclusively on the Intempo GX internet radio.

No downloading or computer connection is needed to listen to a vast selection of podcasts from around the world. Explore the acclaimed GX's new global on demand directory by simply choosing from BBC podcasts, Blog Talk radio or sort by category. With a huge range of subjects from comedy to culture and travel to technology, you will be spoilt for choice.

At the same time, Intempo has improved wireless security and radio buffering. To further enhance internet radio listening, the highest level of wi-fi security, WPA2 is now available for free download on the GX. In addition to providing a greater level of broadband security, Intempo has improved the buffering across all stations, so that the occasional pauses and glitches associated with web listening are reduced.

"Accessing new music with little effort is what Intempo is all about and the GX embodies simplicity and choice." said Katie Richards, Marketing Manager at Intempo.

"The GX is easy to set up, there is no software to install and with a few clicks, the GX instantly delivers access to an unbelievable number of radio stations and podcasts from around the globe." Richards concluded.

For existing customers, the GX will automatically update to include all the new features once the upgrade option is selected from the main menu and on completion the GX will resume radio play.

The GX was Intempo's first internet radio and it retails for £119.99 from Amazon and Argos.